THESE ARE THE FIRST FEW LINES OF A SCRIPT. THE REMAINING LINES ARE BLANK.

THESE ARE THE SCRIPTS FROM THE WEBSITE. THE TEXT IS TOO SMALL AND DENSE TO REPRODUCE ACCURATELY IN THIS FORMAT. IT APPEARS TO BE A COLLECTION OF SCREENPLAYS OR SCRIPTS, BUT THE INDIVIDUAL PAGES ARE NOT LEGIBLY SEPARATED. THE CONTENT IS OVERLAPPING AND UNREADABLE.

FADE IN:
A dark, empty room. A single light source from the left casts a long, sharp shadow of a person sitting on the floor against the wall. The person is hunched over, their head buried in their hands. The room is mostly in shadow, with only the person and their shadow clearly visible. The atmosphere is one of intense isolation and despair.

[The scene continues with a series of similar, fragmented shots, each showing a person in a state of extreme distress or grief, often in dark, confined spaces. The lighting is dramatic, using high contrast to emphasize the emotional state of the characters.]

[The scene concludes with a final, lingering shot of the person in the dark room, their shadow stretching across the wall as the light fades slightly, leaving a sense of profound loneliness.]

FADE IN:
A dark, rainy street at night. A lone figure is seen from behind, walking away from the camera. The figure is wearing a long, dark coat and a hat. The street is wet and reflects the streetlights. The sound of rain is heard in the background.
The figure stops at a crosswalk and looks back over their shoulder. They see a car approaching from behind. The car is a dark sedan. The driver is looking at the figure. The figure turns and walks quickly across the street. The car honks its horn. The figure continues walking, looking back again. The car is still there. The figure runs. The car follows. The figure jumps over a fence. The car crashes through the fence. The figure runs away into the night.
FADE OUT.
